“ I didn't get to him very well because I didn't talk to him much. I wish I had. but I can say that before he died, his true self came out. The person that loved his family, God, and himself for who he was. I remember I used to make coffee for him when I was younger and we would eat peanut butter crackers. I hope he is relieved of his pain because I know it was there but now he can rest in the hands of God.
